

To Rescind Law Against Trucks Using By-Pass

Special Common Council Meeting Wednesday Accepts Report of Traffic Control Committee
Action Delayed
Call of Meeting Did Not Permit Repeal of Law on Wednesday

The Common Council Wednesday evening unanimously adopted the report of its traffic control committee recommending that the traffic restriction in force on East Union street be rescinded, and the laws and rules committee was directed to draft the necessary ordinance and submit it at the first regular council meeting in April.

This was all of the action taken up at the special meeting of the council last evening which had been called to receive the report of the committee.

About 30 interested citizens attended the meeting to hear the report of the committee.

Committee Reports
The committee in its report to the council said that on March 1, 1938, a resolution was introduced in the council and adopted which amended the city traffic code and read "Trucks or trailers, or trucks with trailers attached, are prohibited from using that portion of East Chester street between Broadway and the city line, going in a northerly direction between the hours of 10 p. m. and 8 a. m., and to that extent it is hereby designated as a one-way street for trucks and trailers between those hours."

The report further stated that it had come to the attention of the council that there is considerable opposition to the restriction and certain residents of East Chester street have expressed a desire that the restriction be removed, and filed a petition with the council which resulted in a public hearing being held on March 9, in the city hall, which hearing was attended by about 400 people.

At this hearing the views of those people were expressed as to whether or not the restriction against trucks or trailers, or trucks with trailers attached, using East Chester street between Broadway and the city line, should remain in full force and effect as now constituted or should be repealed.

Bows to Sentiment
"At the conclusion of this hearing your traffic and control committee adjourned, and herewith submit their report to your honorable body: We believe that the restriction affecting trucks and trailers, or trucks with trailers attached, using East Chester street between Broadway and the city line, between the hours of 10 p. m. and 8 a. m., be repealed because of the fact that the overwhelming sentiment of the persons affected, and the citizens of Kingston, is in favor of its repeal."

"We, therefore, recommend that the traffic code, as amended, namely Article 4, Streets-Parking, Section 1, Sub-division 6, be rescinded."

The report was signed by Alderman John G. Garon, James R. Murphy and Herbert Wolf, the members of the committee.

Wicks Amendment
Kingston Republican Would Change Education Law on Transportation
Albany, March 17.—(Special)—Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Republican, of Kingston, has introduced in the legislature a bill amending the education law, providing that voters in a school district may authorize trustees of the district to make contracts for conveying children to school for a period of not more than three years.

Another Wicks bill just introduced provides that the place of trial of actions and proceedings against a school district education board and trustees or officers, shall be the county in which the district is situated, and that no judge, referee, commissioner, witness or juror shall be incompetent solely because he is an inhabitant, freeholder or taxpayer of the district.

Both these bills have been referred to the Senate education committee for further consideration.

Drive Against Diphtheria

In an effort to determine what children are immune to diphtheria, the Schick test is being administered, with the consent of parents, to the school children of the city under the direction of a state health department in cooperation with the Kingston Board of Health. The test is given children whether they have been immunized or not. Where children react to the test immunizing doses of toxoid will be given. Left to right are shown William Crosby, Robert Barabara and Dr. Stebbins at St. Joseph's School, where the campaign opened.

Kiwanis Selects Sidney J. Lutzin For Achievements

The outstanding municipal employee, not elected, during the last year is Sidney Lutzin, city recreational director, it was decided at a meeting of the board of directors of the Kiwanis Club today.

The selection of Mr. Lutzin was based on the number of letters received from fellow workers, his record in the city hall, and for "outstanding efforts in addition to those required in the line of his regular duties."

Mr. Lutzin will receive the Kiwanis Club Achievement Award together with a cash prize at a special club meeting in the near future at which he will be the guest of honor. The award is making its first appearance this year, but will be an annual event, the club announced.

Gasoline War Wages in City
Kingstonians were greeted Wednesday with another "gasoline war" in the city and vicinity stations. Prices of gasoline were running all the way from 14 1/2 cents per gallon up. Most of the stations were selling six gallons for a dollar and other stations were displaying signs "3c. off."

Several weeks ago a gasoline war was started but was short lived. At that time with gas posted at 19 1/2 cents several stations cut the price two cents and others followed with a deeper cut. After a spirited "war" for a few days however an agreement was reached and the stations resumed normal prices. However allegations of cut prices again have brought on another price war.

3 New Saints
Vatican City, March 17 (AP)—Three new saints were created by the Secret Consistory today in the presence of Pope Pius XI. They are the Rev. Father Andre Bobola, a Polish Jesuit who was martyred in Russia in the 17th century; Salvador Da Horia, an 18th century Spanish lay Franciscan and professor; and Giovanni Leonardi, Italian priest who founded the Clerics of the Mother of God.

Pressure, 'Assurances' Felt in Senate
Washington, March 17 (AP)—Senate opponents of the government reorganization bill declared today that White House "assurances" and political pressure had been used in an effort to defeat amendments.

These "assurances," said Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), have convinced some Senators that their "Pet bureaus" would not be disturbed by the president in reorganizing agencies under the broad powers of the bill.

Wheeler said "pressure" also had been applied through long distance calls to some senators from their home states.

Sens. Byrnes (D., S. C.) and McNamara (D., N. C.) denied such methods were being used.

The big issue today was a proposal by Senator Wheeler that the President be required to submit reorganization orders to Congress before they could become effective. The bill would let Congress nullify such orders only by enacting legislation which would

Arm for Protection Is Only Safe Policy, Declares Hull In Quest for World Peace

Cabinet Crisis Threatens British Prime Minister; Polish Tension Less

War Secretary Confronts Chamberlain with Virtual Ultimatum
By The Associated Press.
British Prime Minister Chamberlain—his "realistic" hope of dickered for peace with dictators withered by the heat of a great war scare—seemed threatened with a cabinet crisis unless he adopts a more positive stand regarding Spain and Czechoslovakia.

A demand by War Secretary Leslie Hore-Bliss was said by informed sources to have confronted Chamberlain with a virtual ultimatum, in effect:

Assure Czechoslovakia that Britain will stand with France in armed protection against any German aggression and do something to help forestall establishment of a German-Italian foothold in Spain or Russia.

The internal British strain forecasted the possible recall of Earl Baldwin, Chamberlain's predecessor, and Anthony Eden, his former foreign secretary, who quit last month rather than deal with dictators Hitler and Mussolini.

Soviet Bid.
Soviet Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinov today invited powers other than Germany, Japan and Italy to discuss joint action aimed at "checking further development of aggression and eliminating increased danger of a new world war."

Litvinov said he was urging non-authoritarian powers, including the United States, to discuss joint action to save Czechoslovakia from German attack and Russia's neighbor, Lithuania, from Polish aggression.

Tension between Poland and Lithuania eased somewhat with a statement by the Lithuanian defense minister that the government was preparing to close on a legal basis a border incident which topped 18 years of friction since the Polish occupation of Wilno.

Adolf Hitler, keeping secret any designs on Czechoslovakia to follow up his Austrian coup, prepared a "declaration" for his Reichstag and the world tomorrow. The Spanish civil war may be his topic.

$24,950 Judgment
Justice Foster at Monticello Grants Claim of Former Mrs. Vincent Youmans
Monticello, N. Y., March 17 (AP)—A judgment for $24,950 was on file here today against Vincent Youmans, the composer, for allegedly owed his former wife, now Mrs. Anne Eschner of Washington, D. C.

The judgment was obtained before State Supreme Court Justice Sydney F. Foster on Mrs. Eschner's claim that Youmans had failed to comply with the terms of a separation agreement signed in New York city in 1932 and a divorce decree granted her by Justice John T. Loughran at Kingston, N. Y., in November, 1933.

Spanish Rebels Occupy Caspe Today
Hendaye, France, at the Spanish Frontier, March 17 (AP)—Spanish insurgents reported today they had driven the last government defenders from Caspe and had occupied the town in their eastward march toward the Mediterranean.

Dispatches from Burgos, seat of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's government, said Caspe was taken with the aid of reinforcements rushed out to probe the rebels' advance point of the insurgent drive menacing the government-held coast.

Earlier government reports said government forces southeast of Caspe rallied and smashed through insurgent lines to relieve their beleaguered garrison there. They said then the insurgents' drive had been stopped and Franco's troops had been forced to turn back to smother resistance on their left bank.

Eight insurgent air raids in 13 hours today and last night took at least 234 lives in Barcelona, capital of government Spain. Hundreds were injured. Casualty lists still were incomplete.

The stricken city was cleaning up the debris, gathering bodies and caring for the wounded of six nighttime attacks when the daylight bombardment started.

At 7:45 a. m. (2:45 a. m. E.S.T.) came a new rain of death from the skies. Rescue squads rushed out to probe the debris only to be driven to cover at 10:25 when bombs started falling again in the central part of the city.

In this eighth raid explosives blasted apart homes in a poor residential district. There five or six buildings, 15 stories high, collapsed.

One bomb made a direct hit on a shoe factory and 12 workers were killed, crushed by heavy wooden beams that tumbled about their heads.

Secretary of State Sees Naval Expansion as Only Answer to "International Lawlessness"

'Policing World'
Disclaims Enlarged Navy Would Be Used to Police the World

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull, declaring America must hold to its rights in its quest for world peace, laid down today a policy of arming for protection against "international lawlessness."

"It is my considered judgment that, in the present state of world affairs, to do less than is now proposed would lay our country open to unpredictable hazards," he said, referring to the naval expansion program.

Hull treated, in measured phrases, every aspect of the world situation in an address before the National Press Club. His speech went over an international radio-lookout to a world disturbed by the spectre of war in Europe and Asia.

"The momentous question," he said, "is whether the doctrine of force shall become enshrined once more and bring in its wake, inevitably, international anarchy and a relapse into barbarism."

The cabinet officer, as America's chief foreign minister, expounded a policy of peace, no alliances, collaboration with peaceful nations, military preparations, and opposition to the "exclusion of viewpoint."

Part of World
"We may seek to withdraw from participation in world affairs," he said, "but we cannot thereby withdraw from the world itself. Isolation is not a means to security; it is a fruitful source of insecurity."

Hull expressed "our deep concern over the rising tide of lawlessness, the growing disregard of treaties, the increasing reversion to the use of force, and the numerous other ominous tendencies which are emerging in the sphere of international relations."

He did not refer to any nation by name, but his implication with regard to legal recognition of Austria's absorption by Germany and Japan's expansion in China was clear to his listeners when he said:

"To waive rights and to permit interests to lapse in the face of their actual or threatened violation—and thereby to abandon obligations—in any important area of the world, can serve only to encourage disregard of law and of the basic principles of international order, and thus contribute to the inevitable spread of international anarchy throughout the world."

Points to Recent History
The spectacle of Austria under German control and Nazi troops was before him as he said: "The catastrophic developments of recent years, the startling events of the past weeks, offer a tragic demonstration of how quickly the contagious scourge of treaty-breaking and armed violence spreads from one region to another."

Secretary Hull, flanked by officials of the state department, said this government would continue to protect its citizens and

Dr. Bethune Safe
Aide to Dr. Parsons and Nurse Are Safe at Sian, Shensi Capital, China
Hankow, China, March 16.—Dr. Norman Bethune, Montreal surgeon, and Miss Jane Ewen, a Vancouver nurse, are safe and well in Sian, the Shensi capital, according to word received here.

The two, who left here recently to join the Eighth Route Army's medical service, had been missing for nearly two weeks. They had reached Linfen, in Southwest Shensi, in time to be trapped in the severe hostilities of the late February Japanese offensive.

Details of their journey to Sian are meager, but it is revealed that the Canadians, accompanied by a small detachment of the Eighth Route Army, managed to cross the Yellow River and Shensi, apparently after many days of great hardship and danger. They were then picked up by an Eighth Route Army truck and taken to Sian.

Dr. Bethune and Miss Ewen are financed in their medical work by the Canadian and American Leagues for Peace and Democracy.

The violent wind smashed many of the buildings to fragments. Damage in a West End residential district alone was estimated at $400,000 to $500,000.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Highland, March 17.—More than 70 people attended the parent-Teacher Association meeting in the assembly room of the high school Monday night. Miss Ruth Goldsmith, the president, presided.

Miss June Reynolds, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting. Miss Martha Benesh gave the treasurer's report. Miss Reynolds then read the report sent in by Arthur Poelma, who represented the P.-T. A. at the safety conference in Newburgh last week, stressing the need for courses in safety in schools.

Mrs. Devello S. Haynes gave an account of the Milton P.-T. A. Founder's Day program at the Milton school, which she, Mrs. William Barnaby and Mrs. Allan Hasbrouck attended as delegates from the local unit. Miss Rosella Hobby announced that the flag remain with the third grade. Miss Goldsmith reported that Mrs. James J. Swift had consented to represent the Lloyd P.-T. A. Friday night at the Apple Blossom Festival conference.

Miss Goldsmith then turned the meeting over to Herbert C. Campbell, principal of the school, who introduced the speaker of the evening, Corporal W. E. Caldwell, of Troop C, of the state police at Sidney. Corp. Caldwell's topic was "Crime Prevention and Safety."

The speaker paid tribute to Captain Fox, commanding officer of Troop C, under whom he has served for 13 years, nine of which were spent on patrol duty and the rest in plain clothes service and in the traffic bureau. In the traffic bureau, Corporal Caldwell stated, troopers are taught that they are the servants of the public, and that by understanding and establishing better public relationships they may give better service; that their duties are primarily to preserve the peace, to enforce the law and to protect life and property. He gave several instances where troopers have been called to perform tasks outside of their regular duties, such as milking cows and occasionally acting as midwives. He stressed the fact that crime has become commercialized largely as a result of high-powered motors, that speed aids criminals. He said that new men are given a course in criminal law and in crime prevention in the State Police Schools. He mentioned that now men are picked for aptitude rather than for size and brawn. The attitude of indifference on the part of the good, average, honest citizen, Corporal Caldwell declared, was a stumbling block to the advancement of crime prevention. He also said that while there were police in some sections who had not built up the respect and confidence necessary to pursue their duties properly, the majority were human and tried hard to conduct themselves as to be a credit to the community. The safety columns that are being published in many papers throughout the state, he mentioned as a factor in accident prevention.

At the close of the address by Corporal Caldwell, Miss Goldsmith invited everyone to enjoy the science exhibit arranged by John Gaffney, of the faculty. The exhibit included posters of winds and currents, oil wells, coal mines, Diesel cycle diagram, cylinders and paddlewheels, relief maps of New York state and a large one of the great glacier, 25,000 years ago; models of airplanes, chariots, houses, rooms, trains, horses, a well curb, automobiles, motors, a cabin cruiser, a galvanometer, a well laid out park system, a schooner, a sun dial, and a dam. There were also samples of rocks, metallic ores, scrap books, baskets and bowls and a relief map of the town of Esopus. Refreshments were served in the home-making room in the basement by the following committee: Mrs. William Barnaby, chairman, Miss Marie Van Woerner, Mrs. James J. Swift, Mrs. Valenti and Mrs. Litta. The next meeting will be held on Monday, April 7.

GASOLINE A FARM CROP

Apparently we are not going to run out of fuel for our gas engines. When natural supplies fail, we can make what we need. The petroleum supply may be exhausted in a couple of decades. When that time comes, we can liquefy coal and burn it in our motors. And if our coal supplies ever give out, or if we lose interest in coal, we can raise our gasoline on the farm.

This possibility is emphasized by Dr. Frank C. Whitmore, president of the American Chemical Society. Such fuels go under the general name of hydrocarbons, compounds of hydrogen and carbon. He says:

Many farm crops can be converted into alcohol, which in turn can be readily converted into hydrocarbons. For instance, the pine industry in the south provides turpentine and rosin, which consist of hydrocarbons easily convertible.

The chemists' work in this field represents the beginning of an effort to free man from his dependence on stored raw materials. Ultimately the farm chemurgic movement will put man on a pay-as-you-go basis in terms of raw materials. Instead of having him constantly drawing out of a savings bank of raw materials which nature has accumulated through millions of years.

Henry Ford and the duPonts also have been talking in this way of "chemurgy," meaning the application of chemistry to industrial use, by conversion of natural or agricultural materials. It is one of the things that make the future of the human race look more secure and pleasant, provided we can learn to get along without war. And chemurgy should make war less necessary or justifiable, because nations without large mineral resources may grow substitutes for them on the land.

THE SCRAMBLE FOR OFFICE

Congressmen, remarks a columnist, "are dismayed to note the unusually large number of people who want their jobs this year." The coming primaries and fall elections are going to present more and livelier contests than in recent campaigns. This means more work for the conscientious voter who must choose among the various candidates the man he wants to do the country's lawmaking for him. The ideal of the founding fathers whom we revere so much and understand so little was that the ablest citizen should be sent to the national capital to discuss the country's welfare and enact the laws necessary to promote it.

Voters, being human, do not always know what they really want or what would be best for them. If they did, there would be fewer winning offices by the single method of extravagant promising. But this is all in the routine of democracy, under which we believe the people get, in the long run, the sort of government they want. Mistakes made in one election may be corrected in the next.

PEDESTRIAN SUE

An English motorist sued a pedestrian for negligence in traffic. It was asserted that the pedestrian's movements had been so erratic as to cause the driver to collide with a bank, damaging his car. The plaintiff was awarded $500 damages.

This is a little out of the ordinary in damage suits resulting from highway accidents. Perhaps there ought to be more actions of the sort. The jaywalker in the United States has received a good deal of criticism for his selfish folly. In some communities he has been bawled out and arrested for disregarding traffic signals and crosswalks. But the motorist who has narrowly missed running him down and who has crashed his car into a tree to avoid doing so has not sued for damages. Sometimes, of course, the jaywalker is no longer alive to be sued.

A good idea should not be pushed too far, but certainly it is only fair that pedestrians be made to realize their responsibility in traffic, to obey the regulations and to cooperate with, not defy, the law-abiding motorists.

DIAGNOSING CAPITALISM

It seems that Thurman Arnold, the Yale professor nominated for assistant U. S. attorney general, has been misunderstood by critics of his book, "Masters of Capitalism." He hasn't attacked capitalism, he explains, but merely "diagnosed" it, and "has not taken a position as to its good or evil."

Worse and worse! The American people, generally speaking, don't want an objective, dispassionate attitude. They like partisanship, argument and battle. Anybody who isn't with us is against us. The fellow who, with irritating calmness tries to jog along in the middle of the political and economic road, thinking his own thoughts and coolly analyzing both sides, gets ground between the right and left and is finally bumped off into a ditch.

If this new type of professor, who seems to be a sort of one-man brain trust, can't be branded with the radicals or the conservatives, he may be "spewed out" like St. Paul's brethren who were "neither hot nor cold."

LIVER AND GALL BLADDER.

I believe that most physicians, including myself, when there are abdominal and stomach symptoms that are not acute and there are no definite symptoms of ulcer, cancer, or appendicitis, are likely to blame the symptoms on a sluggish liver and gall bladder. As two of every three individuals of middle age really have some liver and gall bladder disturbance anyway, inflammation or gall stones—the physicians are likely to be right two out of three times if he prescribes treatment for sluggish liver and gall bladder. These symptoms are discomfort, nausea, gas pressure, clay colored stools.

If the adult is in good health, exercises to squeeze the liver such as long deep breaths or bending exercises keeping the knees straight, and the only medicine given may be small doses of Epsom salts daily for one week in each month.

The principal part of the treatment is by diet and so every book on diet now has a diet for liver and gall bladder disturbances. Thus Practical Dietetics by Dr. Sanford Blum, F. A. Davis Co., Philadelphia, gives the following suggestions:

May take, vegetables, especially green ones, limited quantity of boiled, mashed or baked potatoes; farinaceous foods — rice, farina, barley, arrowroot, cornstarch, oatmeal, cream of wheat, and other ordinary cooked breakfast foods; water, mineral water, tea, milk, buttermilk; fresh meat or white fish or game or poultry once a day; eggs in moderation; cottage cheese; limited amount of butter; toast, bread, zwieback, plain cake and puddings; fresh fruit, apples, grapes, peaches, pears, oranges, pineapples, plums, grapefruit, pineapple juice; salads of fresh green vegetables, raw or cooked.

Should avoid: salt, canned, preserved and spiced meats and fish; herring, salmon, sardines in oil; mackerel; stews, goulash, domestic duck, oysters and shellfish; old cheese, American cheese, Swiss cheese, cream cheese except cottage cheese; dry beans, corn, sprouts, cold slaw, cabbage, cauliflower, sauerkraut, onions, garlic, rich soups; berries, preserves; gravies; nuts; olives; pickles; pastries; fat meats; alcohol.

In Barbara's "Treatment by Diet," J. B. Lippincott Co., the diet for one day is as follows. The amounts should be increased when the individual does hard physical work.

Breakfast: 1 serving fruit, 2/3 cup cooked cereal, 1 egg, 2 thin slices toast, 1/2 square butter, 1 glass skimmed milk, 1 tablespoon sugar, tea, coffee or coffee substitute.

Luncheon: Clear soup (no fat) if desired, 1 serving vegetable, 1 slice bread or toast, 1/2 square butter, 1 serving fruit, 1 glass skimmed milk.

Dinner: 1 glass fruit juice, 1 serving meat, 1 small serving potato or substitute, 2 servings vegetables, 1 slice bread, 1/2 square butter, 1 glass skimmed milk, 1 serving fruit.

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

Her ears caught the clatter of horsehoofs.

The Story So Far: Red-headed Cissy Rogers, in love with Reuben Oliver, swoops down in her plane to find out what or who is keeping him buried in the heart of Maryland's hunting district. Both Reuben and Cissy's father have made a fortune in oil, but Reuben has dropped out of the race. A girl is keeping him there—aristocratic Judith Goodloe, who doesn't even recognize his existence.

Chapter Three The Sacred Boundary

CISSY said in a burst of impatience, "They're taking something from you, Reuben—and this country—you don't belong here! It's beautiful, but it's finished. You're new. Raw. You thrive on struggle. Come back where people have red blood and are proud of it!" She stalked before him into the house. "Which is my room?"

Reuben told her and watched her ascending the stairs on quick impatient feet. Trust Cissy to put her finger on the weak spot.

Undoubtedly he knew now, what he had been fighting hard to ignore. Judith Goodloe was keeping him in this sheltered valley, making him contented here—happy even, with that part of him which even as a small boy, wanted beauty and softness, while the other—the fighting Reuben—longed for leaping streams, the call of coyotes, dense timber.

The crackling of ice in the spring was music to this Reuben, so was the mighty roar of thawing rivers with loosening logs, surging down. He liked to ride the flood with them—adventure and death swirling along hand in hand. A hard game with high stakes and only one could win!

Sometimes in the dead of these still, peaceful nights, filled with the scent of roses and ripening wheat, his heart reached out to the wild like a caged timberwolf. Tomorrow he would go back!

But if tomorrow brought the sight of a girl, with an imperious dark head, riding a spirited chestnut mare—and smiling at the world from blue, blue eyes, the thirst for adventure dwindled. A dreamy, languorous contentment claimed him. He had seen Judith. He marked that day with a white stone.

Unconsciously he sighed. White stones were very little for a man—a vigorous man and young—to collect from life. He yearned for something more tangible. The touch of a hand. The faith of a heart. The absolute, undivided faith. There was deeply ingrained in him a doglike loyalty. A need for someone worthy of that loyalty.

Gran's Corner

AMANDA GOODLOE came through the wide doorway under its delicate fanlight. At the threshold, his wizened face wreathed in smiles, she was met by an old negro carrying a footstool and bowing profoundly.

"A fine day, Amos!"

"Yes, mam, Miss Mandy, mighty fine."

"Only the sixth of May, and warm as July. We'll have tea in the garden."

"Yes'm."

Four fifty-five to the minute marked the beginning of the tea hour at Goodloe's Choice. In pleasant weather it was always served out of doors, usually in Amanda's favorite corner where the box grew thickest and blended its spicy fragrance with the aroma of Oolong and mint.

Sometimes the young people clamored to have the table close to the swimming pool, the tennis courts, or down on the lowest terrace which gave upon the meadow where hurdles for trying new hunters had been placed. Usually though, it was in "Gran's own corner," that everyone assembled during the long summer afternoons to fritter away a golden hour.

Amanda took her leisurely way there, a slender, erect, white-haired figure. She crossed the columned portico and formal stone terrace, walked, between box, down five steps to clipped green sward, past century-old rose arbors, a lily pond, and turned into a narrow walk, where wild violets pointed the way to her peacock chair under the oak.

About to seat herself, Mrs. Goodloe straightened and stood at attention. Her keen old ears had caught a sound more heavenly than the chanting of celestial choirs—the sound of galloping horsehoofs. The light staccato footfall of the thoroughbred, as different from the more deliberate tread of his plebeian cousin as day is from night.

"The children are coming! Hear, Amos!"

"Be sure there are enough sandwiches. The children will be hungry."

"Ain't it the truth?" Amos smiled broadly. "It do beat all how they can eat."

"Miss Judith likes strawberry jam—and there will be guests."

Woe To The Climber!

THERE were always guests. Goodloes never "gave a tea," but if one was lucky enough to be inside the boxwood hedge, which grew three rows thick in places, one received a fragrant pink lustre cup from Amanda's hand.

Having tea at Goodloe's Choice was like being presented at a private drawing room—something which about casually, it placed one very definitely, for although the hour was informal, Amanda did not pass out tea promiscuously. Woe be to the climber who penetrated her hedge!

Through contented eyes she looked about her. Of all her possessions—there were many and varied—she placed the highest value upon the boxwood hedge. It was a concrete symbol of all that had gone to make up the 70 amazing years of her life.

She had been born within its aristocratic confines. A Goodloe had married her, and her substantial bonds, after the loss of a beloved young wife and when the sheriff's hammer threatened the box, Amanda had saved it then from greedy creditors. Many times since, she had saved it from the spendthrift Goodloes themselves.

Specially fragrant, greenly remote, it guarded her from an intrusive world, while it proclaimed, more blatantly than a radio loudspeaker, the difference between those within and those without its sacred boundary. In proportion to the sacrifices she had made for it, Amanda loved the boxwood. Intensely, jealously, proudly she loved it. In the innermost depths of her soul she venerated it.

The first Goodloe, who had come over with Calvert after his capture, had brought with him hundreds of tiny green shoots empaneled in the beloved soil of old England. It blended so well with the new strange earth that the box took root at once and started bravely to outline "Goodloe's Choice" in my Lord Baltimore's domain.

To be built well. On this sixth of May, in the year of Our Lord, Nineteen hundred and thirty-five, the great house, an impressive monument to his perseverance, stood overlooking the landscape of his dreams and Amanda waited to see young Judith Goodloe put her hunter over the boxwood—six feet high and broad in proportion—at the very spot where her ancestor had whimsically jumped the spindly four inch shoots nearly three centuries earlier.

Shawangunk Reformed Church

Shawangunk Reformed Church.

During the years from 1680 to 1700 the Dutch came into the district of Shawangunk and settled along the banks of the Wallkill and Shawangunk rivers. Just 27 years later, according to tradition, the Reformed Church was founded at Shawangunk.

However this date may not be authentic, according to the Tercentenary Committee on Research and Publication of the Reformed Church in America. A search of the records of the First Dutch Reformed Church of Kingston shows that in the year 1744 Thomas Decker of Shawangunk was baptized at Kingston, but the first recording of a baptism at Shawangunk is said to be dated 1750. From marriage records which began with the recording of the marriage of Gideon Louw and Rachel Sammon on December 8, 1751, come the names of various dominies which served the Shawangunk congregation.

The First Dominie.

Thus, considering these aforementioned records, the first dominie of the Shawangunk Dutch Reformed Church seems to have been the Rev. Barant Vrooman, whose name appears for the first time in November of 1753. In the same year 25 members were dismissed from the church at Kingston in order that they might bring their letters to the Shawangunk Church.

In 1760, the New Palitz and Shawangunk Churches united in calling the Rev. John Mauritius Goetschius from the Reformed Church at Schoharie. The Rev. Mr. Goetschius brought with him a fine recommendation from the consistory of the "Reformed Church of Jesus Christ in the High and Nether Dutch language at Schoharie," where he had ministered to the congregation for a period of two and one-half years.

Nature of Call.

The call, extended by the consistories of the "United Nether Dutch Reformed Churches at Shawangunk and New Palitz," specified that the new dominie "preach the Word of God in its purity, . . . preach twice on every Lord's Day from Easter until the commencement of October, in the church of Shawangunk and the succeeding Lord's Day at New Palitz, . . . one sermon on each Lord's Day will be sufficient from the beginning of October until Easter. Shawangunk and Palitz each to have an equal share of the services . . . to do house visiting once each year in each congregation." The question of salary was mentioned thus, "The following salary or sum of money of 80 pounds current money of the Province of New York to be paid annually and every year, each congregation in its just half, and whether the salary of 80 pounds shall be paid out in single payment, or 40 pounds each half year, we shall agree about with your Reverence when coming over to us."

The consistories of the two churches further agreed to "provide your Reverence with a decent house, barn, garden and 90 acres of land, besides a good spring near the house, the same to be provided in and by the congregation of Shawangunk, near the church where your Reverence will live, as long as your Reverence shall be with or among us as our Overseer, Pastor and Instructor. Your Reverence, while conducting services at New Palitz, will be provided by the New Palitz congregation with quarters, board and bed. . . . His Reverence is to find his own fire wood, as there is enough of it on the land where he will live."

Discension Causes Split.

The Rev. J. M. Goetschius served the combined congregations for a period of 11 years. During the closing years of his pastorate, the people who lived in the Newbury section petitioned to have a church formed in their section. This petition was first made in 1768 and two years later the new church was formed. On the 17th day of March, 1771, the Rev. J. M. Goetschius died and was buried on March 19 "in the church building, in the place of baptism, aged forty-seven years."

The difficulties in the Reformed Church over the question of authority, whether the churches in America or the Classis of Amsterdam should rule, is evidenced in the records of the Shawangunk Church. The people of Newbury had handed in their petition for a new church because they favored the Coetus party which desired to be independent of Holland, while the people who remained in the Shawangunk Church favored the Conferentie party.

The Rev. Rynier Van Nest was the next minister to come to the Shawangunk Church, receiving the call in April 1774, from the combined churches of Shawangunk and New Palitz. His pastorate continued until 1785, when he removed to Long Island.

Thus the Shawangunk Dutch Reformed Church, said to be over two centuries old, has its part in the early history of the various forms of religion in Ulster county. It is serving its community at the present time under the pastorate of the Rev. John Dirksen, and because of its architecture is one of the finest examples of old churches in this territory.

(Writer's Note—These church histories are compiled from information furnished by the various ministers from old church records, and from books published by different denominations. Any errors or omissions are unintentional and may be caused by incorrect information or lack of definite records.)

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you were to wander unannounced into the lower foyer of the Majestic theater you would come upon this scene: Lupe Velez in slacks and a tight blue sweater; Libby Holman wearing smoked glasses; Clifton Webb seated at a gadget that is supposed to be a breakfast table but in reality is something in the line of a Shubert's thought up; Rex O'Malley in a leather overshirt with side vents making him look like a modern Robin Hood, and a number of other people including a director, a press-agent, and a house manager.

Most of them are rehearsing a scene from a new Shubert play, Miss Holman, "How long can you rehearse, Lupe?" "Let's take that scene where the letter comes in," suggests the director. . . . "Okay," replies Miss Holman. . . . She withdraws an imaginary letter from her bosom, then stops. . . . "What a dreary place to keep a letter," she says to the director. "Don't have a pocket in my apron, or something?"

"Of course, darling, of course, and we must make it large enough so that the letter doesn't fall out."

After the scene Miss Velez comes over and Rex O'Malley puts his arms around her. "Careful, Rex," calls the director. "Lupe once killed a man for doing that, didn't you, Lupe-de-doo?" . . . Then Lupe leans over and bites the director so hard on the arm that he shrieks at the top of his voice. "Confound you, Lupe!" . . . The fiery enclenchade is certainly in top form. . . . She tucks her sweater into her slacks, which are dove grey with a zipper up the side, and swaggers up to the director: "Well, what's holding us up, big boy?"

"Come on, everybody," he calls. . . . Wherefore Miss Holman, still wearing the smoked-glasses although it is twilight down there, and O'Malley sit down at the "breakfast table."

"Now, begin with the letter," says the director hopefully. . . . But at that moment a chauffeur with a smart cap came downstairs and glanced significantly at the players. . . . "How long can you rehearse, Lupe?" the director calls. . . . "Five o'clock," she says. . . . "It's that now," he tells her. . . . "Where do we rehearse tonight," Miss Holman wants to know. . . . "At the Shubert office, 8 o'clock. Be there, everybody."

Old Friends

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
WILLY NILLY got up so quickly that his chair toppled over. "Guests, more guests?" asked the orang-utan.

"Old friends," cried Willy Nilly, old friends—and a part of our Puddle Muddle family." He opened the door and there stood Jelly Bear and Honey Bear.

"Welcome," cried Willy Nilly, all the Puddle Muddlers.

"Did you have a good winter's sleep? Have you slept all you want to sleep? Is it warm enough for you? Are you going back for any more naps? Are you very hungry? Let us tell you what we have been doing. We have wild animals in the Empty House. Oh Puddle Muddle hasn't been quiet at all!"

Such were the questions and speeches shouted by the Puddle Muddlers.

The bears came lumbering inside. They looked thin and a bit scraggy.

"We see you have company," said Jelly Bear, as he noticed the chimpanzee and the orang-utan sitting at the table.

"Yes," said Willy Nilly, "you must meet them," and at once he introduced the bears.

"You must be starved," the little man said, and at once all the Puddle Muddlers began running around getting food for the bears.

"Here's some honey, Honey Bear," shouted Rip.

"Here are berries and nuts and dried apples and Blacky and Chubby," quacked the ducks.

The bears had empty stomachs but they had full, happy hearts.

Bergan Memorandum Presents 2 Novel Law Questions in Claims

The memorandum of Justice Francis Bergan in the three Esopus creek damage action claims which have just been sustained, settles so far as the Supreme Court is concerned two novel questions of the law. The matter came before Justice Bergan on a motion to confirm the report of the commissioners of appraisal in the Frederick, McGrath and Simon cases, where awards were made by the commissioners for damages done to property by reason of the introduction of Gilboa waters into the Esopus creek and also for compensation to owners for future use of the creek over their lands for the Gilboa flow of water.

In the Frederick and McGrath cases the claimants objected to the awards made on grounds of insufficiency and also because of a alleged lack of proper opinion as to damage values by the city or the trespass. The Simon award was objected to by the city on the grounds that Simon had no right to damages to the property for any trespass of the city prior to the time he bought the land at mortgage foreclosure sale in 1931.

Justice Bergan's memorandum in the three cases settle both of these points of law. The memorandum follows:

In the Matter of the Application and Petition of GEORGE J. GILLESPIE, HENRY HESTER-BEIG and RUFUS E. McCAH-EN, constituting the Board of Water Supply of the City of New York, to acquire real estate for and on behalf of the City of New York, under Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1907 and the acts amendatory thereof, in the Towns of Shandaken and Olive, Ulster County, New York, for the purpose of providing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water for the City of New York. (Supreme Court, Ulster County Special Term, February 4, 1933). Justice Frances Bergan, presiding.

Appearances: William C. Chanler, Corporation Counsel, Attorney for City of New York (Henry R. Bright and Vincent G. Connelly, of counsel). Charles W. Walton, Kingston Trust Bldg., Kingston, N. Y., Attorney for Claimants. (Carl O. Olson, of the Bar).

BERGAN, J.: CHARLES W. FREDERICK, Parcel No. 13.

Claimant has been awarded the sum of $35 for damages caused by the overflow of waters in the Esopus Creek from February 6, 1924, to March 13, 1936, and the sum of $360 for the acquisition of the right in perpetuity to affect the natural flow of waters in that stream. Objection is made to the confirmation of the awards by the claimants on the ground they are inadequate. The claim filed was for $3,500. There is little difference in opinion among the experts on value called on each side, as to the value of the entire property. There is substantial difference as to depreciation caused by the taking in perpetuity. The city offered no proof on the damage caused by the trespass prior to the taking of the permanent easement. The value of the right in perpetuity was placed by two witnesses for claimant at $650; by one witness for the city at $175 and by another at $110. One witness for the claimant fixed the value of the trespass damage at $350; another at $300.

award was by the board of assessors, and the distinction between its powers and those of condemnation commissioners with incidental rights of inspection of the premises was made. (Page 770). Matter of City of New York (Tilous Street) (139 A. D. 238) seems to sustain the position of claimant. The dissenting opinion by Judge Burr indicates that the effect of that decision was to overrule all of the authorities from Matter of Brook Avenue (8 A. D. 234). It is apparent that the general trend of decisions is not in accord with the position taken by the claimant.

While no evidence of value of the damage prior to the taking was offered by the city, the commission was not entirely concluded by the estimates of damage given by claimant's witnesses. The commission, of course, could not, by inspection of the property, ascertain all that had occurred from February 6, 1924, to March 13, 1936. There was, however, presented in the evidence, conditions during the period of 12 years from which, in addition to the inspections actually made by the commission, it could have determined the damage. The amounts of awards made to other claimants, viewed in the aspect of the award made to this claimant, are not helpful to him. Since the value of land varies with different localities through which the stream passes and there are other variable factors of damage, the stream frontage is not an absolute criterion of value, and if it were, the award could not be disturbed. The fact that the award made to this claimant is not a precedent in this respect may be reasonably debatable. I think the special term is required to confirm it. The objection of the claimant is overruled, and the motion to confirm is granted.

Thomas J. McGrath, Parcel Nos. 32, 33

In this claim an award of $375 was made for damages prior to the acquisition of the permanent easement and $800 for the taking of the permanent easement. Claimant objects to confirmation on the ground of inadequacy. I think the same rule must be applied here with respect to the damage prior to the taking, as in the Frederick case. There is a very striking conflict in opinion of the experts upon the question of permanent damages. This opinion ranges from a minimum of $300 given by a witness for the city, to a maximum of $3,340 given by a witness for the claimant. It seems inconceivable that such a difference could represent the real opinion of experts, fairly arrived at. The difference illustrates the evil, and the futility, sometimes, of reliance upon the opinions of experts hired by parties in litigation. The result reached by the commission should be confirmed for the reasons stated in the Frederick case. The objection is overruled and the award confirmed.

GEORGE SIMON Parcel No. 39

Claimant's title to the real estate is derived from a referee's deed upon the foreclosure of a mortgage. The deed was dated July 24, 1931. It was recorded July 27 of the same year. The mortgages foreclosed were given antecedent to February 6, 1924, the date upon which the petitioner began inducing waters impounded by the Gilboa dam through the Shandaken tunnel into the Esopus creek. The commission has awarded the claimant damages in the sum of $45 in compensation for the "overflowing," flooding and trespassing" upon the lands in question from February 6, 1924, to March 13, 1936. The claimant, accordingly, has been awarded damages, in part, for a period prior to his acquisition of title by the referee's deed of July 24, 1931. The City of New York objects to this award. The amount involved is small; the principle of law is of considerable importance. I think the award was properly made and should be confirmed. A conveyance made upon a sale in pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure vests in the grantee all the estate that could be conveyed by the mortgagor and mortgagee. (C. P. A., Sect. 1085).

It was pointed out by Judge Finch in Rector, etc., Christ P. E. Church v. Mack (93 N. Y. 488, 491) that the construction to be placed upon the substantially identical provisions of the predecessor of Section 1085 was early settled by the Court of Appeals in Brainerd v. Cooper (10 N. Y. 358) and in Packer v. the Rochester & Syracuse R. R. (17 N. Y. 287). "The effect of the foreclosure deed, therefore, as determined by the statute, is to vest in the purchaser the entire interest and estate of mortgagor and mortgagee, as it existed at the date of the mortgage, and unaffected by the subsequent incumbrances and conveyances of the mortgagor." (Rector, etc. Christ P. E. Church v. Mack, Supra, page 492). The principle has been quite consistently followed. (Pardee v. Steward, 37 Hun 259; Caccia v. Brooklyn Union E. R. Co., 1 D. 224, 237). See also the concession of the parties referred to in the opening paragraph of the opinion of Vann, Jr., in Wells v. Barbutt (132 N. Y. 430, 434).

The owner of the equity of redemption was entitled to damages arising from the overflow of waters on his lands, or the trespass of the city prior to the foreclosure. (Batterman v. Albright, 122 N. Y. 484, 489). But upon the foreclosure all his unforced right to damages were deemed by operation of law to have passed to the purchaser at the sale under the judgment who acquired thereby the interest he would have acquired had the mortgage, when given, been a deed to the property to such purchaser.

It must be conceded to the position taken by the city, that the usual deed of conveyance would not have this effect. (King v. Mayor, 102 N. Y. 171). There it was said of a somewhat similar claim for damages: "That right remained theirs (the grantors) and passed to the plaintiffs as their representatives, unless it was transferred by the deed of the premises." The damages were like those which follow a trespass or wrongful taking of property, although the wrong is made right by the legislative authority and the damages are awarded by compensation." The distinction lies, however, in the fact that the deed of the referee must be deemed to have been made as of the date of the mortgage, and by operation of law carries with it all of the rights arising from damage or injury to the land, remaining exercised or unexercised by the owner of the foreclosed equity of redemption, that would have accrued to the mortgagee if he had been instead, the grantee when the mortgage was given.

Stated in other words, the referee's deed operated to convey the right to such damages in the same manner as if the owner of the land had transferred the claim with the title. There is, hence, the exception noted by Judge Finch in the King case, that the rule there stated does not apply when the cause of action for damage to land is conveyed with the title by the deed. By operation of law that happened here and I think the exception to the rule must be applied. The case of Porter v. Metropolitan Elevated Co. (120 N. Y. 281) would seem to suggest a different rule. It is based in part on King v. Mayor (Supra). Claimant urges that it is distinguishable, in part, on the ground that "the plaintiff commenced her action before she had been divested of title to the property." This does not seem to be the fact. The judgment of foreclosure and sale was made in December, 1879; the action for damages started in March, 1880, and the opinion (page 289) refers to "the fact the plaintiff did not own the property at the time of the commencement of the action." The court, however, seems not to have considered the rule giving the effect of conveyance as of the time of the mortgage to the purchaser upon foreclosure, and I think the implications of the decision should not, in the light of more persuasive authority, be applied here.

The objection to this award is overruled and the award confirmed.

An order should be submitted by the Corporation Counsel in conformity with this memorandum. For that purpose the records, exhibits and papers used upon the motion may be obtained at my office in Albany.

OFFICE CAT

SAINT PATRICK'S DAY—

March 17, 1938.

There are at least three points about the life of St. Patrick, patron saint of Ireland, that we might note with profit. They are:

He made an asset of misfortune.

He was a man of energy and action.

He used common sense and good judgment.

Three Leaves of Shamrock

When leaving dear old Ireland, in the merry month of June,

The birds were sweetly singing,

all nature seemed in tune.

An Irish girl accosted me, a sad tear in her eyes.

And as she spoke these words to me, bitterly she cried:

"Kind, sir, I ask a favor, O, grant

it to me, please:

"Tis not much that I ask of you,

but will set my heart at ease.

Take these to my brother Ned,

he's far across the sea,

And don't forget to tell him, sir,

that they were sent by me."

Three leaves of shamrock, the Irishman's shamrock,

From his own darling sister, whose blessings, too, she gave.

"Take these to my brother, for I have no other.

And these are the shamrocks from his dear old mother's grave.

"Tell him since he went away how bitter was our lot;

The landlord came one winter's day and turned us from our cot.

Our troubles were so many, our friends were very few.

And brother, dear, she often used to sigh for you.

"Oh, darling son, come back," she often used to say,

Ales, one day she sickened and soon was laid away;

Her grave I've watered with my tears, that's how these shamrocks grew;

And brother, dear, they're all I've got, and these I'll send to you."

Read It Or Not

There is no documentary evidence that St. Patrick ever conducted a crusade against snakes

in Ireland.

More than a few believe that

Benjamin Franklin was the most amazing personality ever developed in America.

They used to tell of a shiftless character who piled into bed one night, shoes, clothes, and all. After a while, his wife shook him:

"Wife—Get up, you've got your shoes on.

Hubby—That's all right, they ain't my good shoes.

One generally buys the best cold remedy just as the cold is wearing off naturally.

Many people now would appreciate a steady job—but not this kind:

The immigrant had finished his first month on a western farm:

Immigrant—I'm quitlin', boss.

You promised me a steady job.

Farmer—Well, it is a steady job, isn't it?

Immigrant—No, there's at least three hours in the middle of the night I've nothing to do.

If you are a young man, and have not yet proposed, make it plain that you love her. This fellow tried hard, but—

He—You are the most wonderful girl in the world. You are the object of my life, the hope of my hope, my inspiration and my ambition. I would fight dragons, conquer the world for you. Will you be mine?

She—Oh, Tommy, do you really like me?

If you know you are right and stick to it in the face of ridicule, that is real bravery.

English Visitor (to cowboy)—Has the advent of radio helped ranch life?

Cowhand—It certainly has. For one thing, we learn a new cowboy song every night. And say—we've found out the lingo us fellows have used for years is all wrong.

Organ music is the most satisfactory radio entertainment. You can read right along and forget you are hearing it.

Boxer—Did you hear the latest? I'm going to be married April 9.

Manager—Are you? Who's your opponent?

ZENA

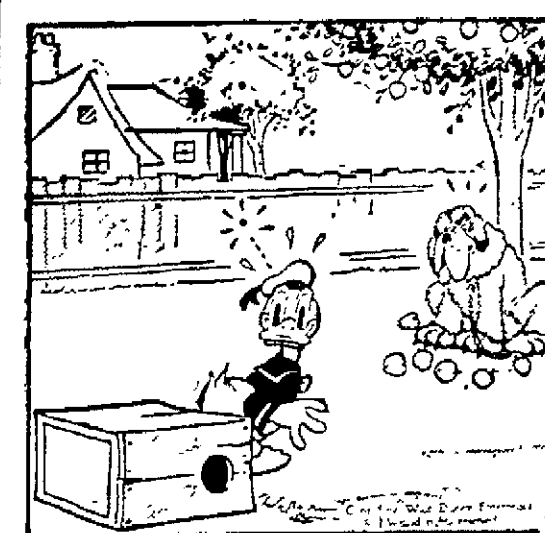

Zena, March 15.—On Wednesday evening Mrs. Everett Cashtod-Jar, Mrs. Morris Risely, Mrs. Clyde Elwyn and the Misses Florence Hill, Alice Holmizer and Florence Pever, all members of the Agape Rebekah Lodge of Bearsville gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis to present the play which they presented at the banquet and meeting held in Kingston on Thursday evening in honor of the state president of the Rebekah Lodge.

Alfred Roux had the misfortune to cut his foot with an axe last week one day while chopping wood. He is now under the care of Dr. Bassow of Woodstock.

Erwin Holmizer and Edward Hung have been absent from high school due to severe colds.

The hero of Longfellow's "Hiawatha" was a 16th century Mohawk Indian chief, though he appears in the poem as an Algonquian.

office is the applicants' contact with the unemployment insurance set-up as well as his contact with a state-wide employment exchange which is attempting to secure him new employment. It is important to handle unemployment insurance exchanges because it enables us to try to find work for wage earners. The sooner workers find work, the more money we preserve in the fund. Workers are referred to employment solely on the basis of their qualifications for the job and workers who are not insured have the same chance of getting a job through our offices as those workers who are insured. Our employment interviewers have no way of knowing whether applicants referred to fill job openings are getting benefits or not nor does this matter one bit as applicants are referred on the basis of ability.

There is no charge for using the employment service, either for employers or for applicants. The public employment exchange idea has had a long uphill fight in the United States. New York may be regarded as a sort of a laboratory where considerable pioneering took place. We have had in the Empire State a public employment service for more than 20 years. Industrial countries of Europe long ago realized the significance of a public employment service, with the result that every important country has had such a service for many years. We in the United States have been slow in our appreciation of the need for such a service, and not until the depression did we realize that to assist people in obtaining employment is as much an obligation of society as are the institutions of public education and public health.

Wagner-Peyser Bill

The major development on a national scale toward a comprehensive and scientific approach to the public employment problem was the enactment by Congress in 1933 of the Wagner-Peyser bill. This bill, in effect, recreated the United States Employment Service and provided that by affiliation with it and acceptance of its standards, the states could become eligible to receive matching funds for those which they expended in the development of their own public employment service. What was contemplated by the Wagner-Peyser Act was the eventual establishment of a national federal service to be guided by Federal standards and under Federal supervision but locally administered and utilizing local variants of the basic principles laid down.

With the start of unemployment insurance benefit payments, the employment service is integrated and woven into the unemployment insurance procedure. The employment service now has registered with it hundreds and thousands of men temporarily without jobs—men and women who have recently been employed and who are qualified for employment in hundreds of different occupations. It is this employment exchange which is at the disposal of employers throughout the state. The State Employment Service, with your cooperation can assume a place of importance in the local community. It can refer applicants for jobs in any field and for jobs of a temporary as well as of a permanent nature. The employment Service has set up hundreds of classifications of occupations so that we can refer applicants who are qualified to fit the specific requirements of the job at hand. It is not enough that we list a man as a mechanic, a lathe hand or a carpenter, but we know and must know what specific type of work and what specific machinery or tools he is capable of using in his trade. I want personally to urge employers to make use of the employment service, to come around and get acquainted to see our office and our personnel and to let us help fill job openings. I hope to see the Service become an integral part of the community so that we will be able to render a service to the employers of this community and in doing this to better serve the interests of both the employers and the unemployed of this community. Our offices have not been established merely to perform the necessary mechanics of unemployment insurance. I need only to recall that we have established an employment—not an unemployment office and to tell you that in the title of our division—the Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance the word Placement comes first.

At The Theatres

Broadway: "Of Human Hearts."

The title of this picture brought a Carolina boy $5000 in a national Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contest and the picture itself is a robust and heart warming story of the Civil War and of a boy who forsakes his parents only to realize the depth of parental love. Abraham Lincoln and other historical figures of that day parade their way through America's destiny and the cast stars Walter Huston and features James Stewart and John Carradine. The battle sequences are done with effectiveness, there is a tender love story that is played with skill by Mr. Stewart and the production is well worth seeing both from a historical as well as an entertainment standpoint.

Kingsport: "No Time To Marry."

Double features continue at the uptown theatre with Mary Astor starring in the opening offering, a dramatic romance of a working girl who has little time for love. "Partners of the Plains" is the associate attraction with William Boyd again in his favorite role of a hard riding, fast shooting cowboy who straightens up several evils during the course of the play's action.

Orpheum: "Submarine D-1."

The submarine service of the United States navy is displayed with much vigor in this story of men who are trained in under sea fighting. The plot revolves around a cocky recruit whose laxity causes a sub commander much grief and it also concerns a man's invention that will rescue a crew trapped in a submarine on the ocean floor. The fighting strength of the navy goes through maneuvers during the filming of this production and the mock war staged in the Pacific is both exciting and spectacular. The cast features Wayne Morris, Pat O'Brien and George Brent.

Tomorrow Broadway: Same.

Kingsport: "Sally, Irene and Mary."

The long, tough road to fame in the entertainment field is discussed and dramatized to music, heartache and laughter in 20th Century-Fox's latest musical comedy opus that bases its high rating on the fact that some of the biggest names in radio and the screen are on the program. It's the story of three girls and of a manager who tries to get them placed and the film is a series of songs, dances, whirlwind romantic interludes, gags, rapid fire dialogue and elaborate settings. Heading the cast is Alice Faye, and other featured performers include Fred Allen, Tony Martin, Joan Davis and Marjorie Weaver. Here is a funny and useful musical number that rates with the best of its kind.

Orpheum: "Pepper" and "Cattle Rustlers."

A meddlesome young lady turns her family and the town she lives in into a shambles in the first attraction at the Orpheum, a story of juvenile misdeeds with Little Jane Withers starred. The laughs are many in this one. "Cattle Rustlers" is a virile film of the west with handsome Charles Starrett in the role of danger all the way as the hero of the piece. The gun play is rapid and the villain is a tough and desperate hombre who causes Mr. Starrett many uncomfortable moments.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—No doubt about it, here's the style center of the world—all styles.

A block and a half off the boulevard there opened the other evening a new night club, Cuban in theme and cuisine, rather steep as to tariff, excellent as to music—La Conga.

Hollywood, meaning the movie crowd, invariably turns out for a new night club. If it's still turning out, some 60 days later, the club's a hit. But Hollywood turns itself out, sartorially speaking, as it pleases. The feminine contingent of our party pointed this out with no sympathy at all for Hollywood's way of working and living, which of course dictates the dress of the lady style-setters.

"It's just funny, that's all," one of them said. "Most places evening dress is evening dress, but here—well, look around."

Just Off The Air

The look-around was fruitful. The feminine contingent agreed that Alice Faye, over there with Tony Martin, was "smart" in that suit affair and hat with long shawl-like veil. Also that Gracie Allen, suited and hatless, was "free chic and cute" dancing with George Burns.

"What's wrong with that?" argued counsel for the defense. "Those people just got through airing tonight—when would they get a chance to slip into something loose if they wanted to?"

"Nothing's wrong — only look around some more. Just what is evening dress in this town?"

The ensuing survey revealed: The Brewster twins in long flowing white; one girl in a colorful turban; another unknown in bright tweeds ("Well, she's been to Santa Anita, came right on here"); a little brunette in a street suit, rhumbaing nicely; another beauty in filmy white, carrying a big cherry-pink feather fan; a bejeweled and glittering Sophie Tucker; Mrs. Buck Jones and daughter; Maxine in "longs"; another tweedy horse devotee; diamonded dowagers; Claire Dodd in long black with eye-catching tall black hat, fancied with colored ribbons, and so on.

Dietrich Enters

Interest in assorted costumes took another turn when Marlene Dietrich swept in, making her customary entrance. She was done up in black with a high hat, strangely like Claire Dodd's, only prickly with feathers instead of ribboned. The feminine contingent gaped with delightful anticipation: what would Dietrich do when she saw Dodd?

But that question was never resolved, because Dietrich did not see Dodd.

Rosendale. March 17.—The regular meeting of the Rosendale Association was held in the Men's Hall, Rosendale, on Tuesday evening, March 15. More than 200 people attended.

The meeting was called to order at 8:15 p. m. with Joseph O'Connor, president, in the chair.

During a discussion of supervised entertainment Walter Williams suggested that any local boy desiring the position of social director should make application to an officer or member of the board of directors of the association immediately. Several applications were received and many more are expected by April 1.

Edward Huben said that his committee hopes to have the new Rosendale Township booklet in circulation for the Apple Blossom Festival week-end.

President O'Connor spoke briefly on the payment of dues for the ensuing year, stating that payment was in order and urging an early remittance.

Treasurer Ralph Dewey reported a favorable balance, stating that memberships were being renewed quite rapidly.

At the conclusion of the business meeting Walter Williams, chairman of the entertainment committee took charge of the literary program.

Mr. Williams introduced Dr. E. F. Galvin whom he said would explain the following entertainment, since he had been fully responsible for securing it.

After receiving generous applause, Dr. Galvin explained that the entertainment would consist of a sound film on the causes and cures of syphilis and a second on the prevention of accidents in the home. He further explained that these pictures were secured through the New York State Department of Health. He said that these pictures were available to any organization that could produce an audience of at least 35 people and that he would be glad to secure them upon 30 days' notice.

At the conclusion of the program Dr. Galvin gave a short talk on syphilis and urged everyone who intended to be married to submit themselves to a test which would definitely determine whether they were infected. This he said would prevent many prenatal infections.

Walter Williams thanked Dr. Galvin for his cooperation and enlightening discussion. He also thanked Vincent Orogan and Sol Kunofsky of the New York State Department of Health who were in charge of showing the films.

Mr. Williams told the audience that his committee was securing a program of local entertainment for the next meeting.

Action on Note Settled Wednesday

After taking a jury at the morning session in No. 91, an action on note brought by Howard A. Lewis and others against Charles A. Van Ethen and another, the case was settled during the noon recess when Justice Birgan announced that a settlement had been arrived at between parties. Service of the jurors was not required when the afternoon's session was convened. The jurors were excused until this morning at 10 o'clock.

The action arose over a note held by the National Ulster County Bank and Trust Co. at the time of the 10-organization. The note given in full payment on an automobile bore the endorsement of the local agent. When the bank organized it was alleged the bank demanded other payment of the return of the chattel. The car was surrendered in lieu of payment of the note. The dispute arose over whether the car had been surrendered to the bank on demand of the bank as settlement for his balance on the note. The terms of settlement were not announced in court.

Thomas I. Plunkett appeared for the plaintiffs and Francis T. Murphy for the defendants.

No Crystal, but a Cave Aids Weather Prophets

Amateur weather prophets who live in the vicinity of the Eiger glacier, on the route from Interlaken to the Jungfrau, depend not on the look of the sky but on the grotto of the glacier for their prophecies, according to an Interlaken, Switzerland, writer. If the ice in it is a clear turquoise blue or dark sapphire, they know that the day will be fair, but if it is a dull green, snow can be expected in this region, and rain in the valley.

The grotto in which the weather is foretold is about 86 feet long, with an arched roof from seven to eight feet high in the center. The glacier at this point is a solid mass of ice about 150 feet thick.

The whole region about it is one of scenic grandeur. Farther on is the Eigerwand station, where a huge room has been cut out of the mountain, with three large windows from which travelers can look out over the lower mountain peaks. Miles away the ranges of the Jura, the Vosges and the Black Forest are visible.

Made Constitution Effective

On June 21, 1788 New Hampshire ratified the United States Constitution and, being the ninth state so to act, made it effective. On June 25, Virginia, then one of the most populous of the thirteen states, voted for ratification. In "The Critical Period of American History" John Fiske writes: "The couriers from Virginia and those from New Hampshire, as they soured their horses over long miles of dusty road, could shout to each other the joyous news in passing." Such couriers, who provided practically the only means of communication between state and state, had played an important part in the crystallization of public opinion in favor of the Constitution, without which its ratification by the necessary number of states would have been impossible.

Floating Steel

A piece of solid iron or steel will sink in water. Shaped into a vessel or container that will hold a large amount of air, it will float on water, just like our great iron ships. Though the steel in the ship is much heavier than the water, it is the weight of the ship as a whole that counts. Provided that this weight, with its cargo and large air space, is less than the weight of an equal volume of water, the ship will float.

Inspecting Fire Equipment

Stamford, Conn. officials paid a visit to Kingston for the purpose of inspecting local fire fighting equipment. Shown above, left to right, are Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, Mayor Heiselman, Fire Chief Victor Vert of Stamford and Mayor Edward J. Gonnory of Stamford. Following the inspection at the Central Fire Station, a demonstration was given at the Rondout Creek.

BROKERS CHARGED WITH GRAND LARCENY

These three members of the New York securities firm of Campagnoli & Co., were arrested, charged with grand larceny in connection with the alleged use of $165,000 worth of customers' securities. The men are shown as they surrendered at the office of the attorney general in New York. L. to R.: Hugo G. Campagnoli, president and treasurer; Joseph B. Schubert, secretary, both of New York, and William H. Ferris, vice-president, of Darien, Ohio.

Lump Payments Average Is $39.59

A total of 1,784 claims, amounting to $70,636.32, for lump sums under the old-age insurance system of the Social Security Act, were approved for payment in New York State during February, it was announced today by John Form, manager of the Kingston field office of the Social Security Board.

Since the old-age insurance program started on January 1, 1937, 10,913 claims, amounting to $343,468.37, have been approved for payment in the state; the total number for the country was 92,049, amounting to $2,588,366.57.

"One interesting feature of this report," Mr. Form said, "is that the average claim approved for New York was several dollars higher than the national average for the same period. The New York average claim was worth $39.59, and for the country as a whole only $24.69."

With claims steadily increasing in value, Mr. Form urged all eligible claimants in Ulster, Dutchess and Putnam counties to file claims immediately with his office, so that they can be paid promptly. The lump sum claims are paid to eligible workers now reaching 65, and to the estates or survivors of workers who die before that age. The payments amount to 3 1/2 per cent of the total wages from covered employment received by the worker after 1936.

The largest claim so far paid was for $1,001.67 paid to a New York city employee. Payment of a claim of this size is possible, it was explained by Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, regional director of the Social Security Board, since the Social Security Act permits the accumulation of wage credits from more than one job, although only the first $3,000 from any one employer in a single year is credited to an individual's account. The claim for more than $1,000 came from a man who had reached the age of 65 and who was employed by seven concerns.

"Too Cold to Snow," an Old Saying but Not True

The majority of more or less heavy snows occur in connection with a general cyclonic storm—L. e., a traveling atmospheric disturbance, usually several hundred miles across, in which the barometric pressure is relatively low and in which the winds (in the northern hemisphere) circulate in a counter-clockwise direction around the center; the storm moves from a westerly toward an easterly direction, and the snow falls in the forward portion of the storm where the winds are from southerly or easterly directions and are therefore relatively mild. As the storm passes, the winds change to northwesterly and hence are relatively cold; that is precipitation comes with relatively warm easterly or southerly winds, and clear weather follows with relatively cold northwesterly winds. If, then, the winter wind is from the northwest, it is cold, and at the same time the wrong direction (in the wrong part of the storm area) to give snow, says the United States weather bureau.

This, presumably, is the origin of the saying, "It is too cold to snow." This statement, however, is not literally true, because light snows can and do occur at any temperature whatever below freezing, and it occasionally happens that heavy snows occur when the surface air is quite cold.
